SUPPLY CHAIN METRICS PROJECT TEAM ACHIEVEMENT

Anthony Meno, Laura Morsony, Bryce Steslicki, Susan Riddle and Carol Tady

These five analysts took on the leadership role of a larger cross-functional analyst working group of 15+ for a project to:

- Research and identify best practices of other institutions' supply chain performance metrics
- Determine and make recommendations to leadership for what we should in SCM
- Share why the metric is important and how we would get the data
- Present recommendations to leadership

This was a project with high-level goals, minimal direction and competing priorities and personalities. This team did an excellent job of meeting the goals on time and within scope. We will use the work they did to improve our performance internally and for our customers and use the metrics to inform our outreach project with departments.

DESHENG CHEN Invaluable Staff Member

Desheng is an invaluable staff member to his teammates, as well as his clients. He handles an extensive workload on a daily basis. He plows through his work daily, yet produces quality work that would hold up to any audit. He is always extremely approachable and receptive to not only taking on new projects, but for being extremely accommodating when approached with yet more projects. He is both tenacious and meticulous in his analysis and work product. He is an absolute gem, and we are beyond fortunate to have him on our team. We would be at a loss without him.

MARIA MAZZEI Above and Beyond Duty

Over the 11½ months working on the Comprehensive Furniture Project that was recently awarded, Maria provided remarkable administrative support to a very trying project, marred with disruptions, personnel changes, lack of project scope, continuity and sometimes project indecisiveness. Using her longtime experience within the UC system, her procurement background and a “CAN-DO” attitude, she helped pull together a very solid contract agreement that contains all the UC requirements including terms and conditions, HIPPA Business Associate, Data Security and various other attachment, appendix and exhibits.

TIMOTHY ALT Integral to Success

Tim has worked tirelessly to modify the @IW Financial Report in the Facilities Dashboard in MyReports. He was integral in modifying the report to view the information in a more complete and user friendly way. In addition, he has dug into the report monthly and uncovered financial discrepancies that have had to be reversed by the Financial Analysts in the FSC. He has tackled these tasks with expertise and a wonderful attitude.

SONYA VALENCIA Instrumental

Sonya she has been instrumental in providing a smooth transition in the reorganization. She has provided support to me and my staff in the areas of new equipment, finance details and traversing our new landscape. She has done all of this with a wonderful attitude and a smile. On behalf of Construction AP, Purchasing and @IW we want to thank her and let her know we appreciate her efforts.

PAUL MULLIGAN & LIAN SUSSMANN Above and Beyond Duty

Paul Mulligan and Lian Sussmann worked tirelessly for 10 months providing the California State Auditors (CSA) with more than one million purchase orders, executed contracts and RFP information. This audit was politically sensitive with the potential to put UCSF in a negative spotlight if it didn't go well. The auditors commended UCSF during our exit interview for being so collaborative with them. Lian and Paul responded in a timely and helpful manner to the CSA's ever-changing scope of work. We would not have had as successful of an exit interview without their professional, patient responses via countless emails, phone calls and in-person meetings.
